Measure for Measure
Directed by Carole Healey
In a society overrun by brothels, opportunists, moralists, and politicians, the ruling Duke Vincentio appoints his stern deputy, Angelo, to restore the peace. But when the virtuous and beautiful Isabella comes to Angelo to plead for her brother’s life, will he succumb to the vices he so abhors? Will the Duke act quickly enough to save the day and once more put his Kingdom in order?

A provocative play of political intrigue and moral responsibility, part bed-trick, part head-trick, part mystery, and part love story, Measure for Measure remains one of Shakespeare’s most fascinating and intriguing dramatic comedies.

Much Ado About Nothing
Directed by Fontaine Syer
Returning war heroes, sweethearts in waiting, noble princes, mischievous brothers, and a bumbling constable are the lovable and laughable characters inhabiting this rollicking play. Presided over by the sparring, wise-cracking, mismatched lovers Beatrice and Benedick, this sparkling romantic comedy of wit and banter, fools and tricksters, takes us on a tumbling journey of laughter and love, and happy endings all around.

Much Ado About Nothing is William Shakespeare at his best, as he proves to us yet again that when it comes to falling in love, it is never too late.
